SUPPORT

Your membership helps support the ongoing effort to promote archaeological awareness within our communities and foster a partnership between professional and avocational archaeologists.

ASD volunteers excavate at Avery's Rest in Sussex County

The Archaeological Society of Delaware was founded in 1933 by amateur and professional archaeologists to study and appreciate archaeology, and more recently, historic preservation.

The Mission of the ASD

is to educate members and the public about archaeology and to promote an interest and participation in archaeology and related activities. The ASD and its members support professional archaeological investigations and report on archaeological activity in Delaware and the surrounding region.

BENEFITS OF MEMBERSHIP

- subscription to Inksherds, a quarterly newsletter containing announcements about activities, meetings, events, and current archaeological projects
- The Bulletin*, an annual journal with articles on recent Delaware research
- opportunities to participate in various field projects, lab work, research studies, conferences, and excursions
- access to other publications and resources

Buckle, fish hook, stoneware tankard, tobacco pipes, stone axe, projectile points

EVENTS & ACTIVITIES

Chapter Meetings

The Chapters of the ASD meet on a monthly or bi-monthly basis and usually consist of presentations on recent investigations and research. Free and open to the public.

Field and Lab Opportunities

Lab work and analysis is currently ongoing for the Avery's Rest site in Sussex County. Fieldwork is being conducted at Wildcat Manor in Kent County. Other field and lab opportunities are available through partnering organizations.

ASD volunteers excavate at Wildcat Manor.

May is Archaeology Month!

- archaeology festivals
- Early Colonial Delaware Valley Archaeological and Historical Symposium
- ASD Annual Meeting
- lectures and events throughout the state

Partnership with ASM

ASD has partnered with the Archaeological Society of Maryland to bring you twice the benefits (except publications) with access to more lectures, trainings, and events.
